

SALOMON KLEIN

On Sunday August 4th, after Mass, I briefly spoke about my almost two months in Bolivia. I volunteered at Salomon Klein, an orphanage that NOVA has long been supporting financially and where several of us at NOVA have had the opportunity to volunteer. I was in Cochabamba doing a research project for my university and I wasn't able to commit regular hours to Salomon Klein, but the staff was very flexible, warm and inviting. I worked in a classroom of 25 or so 3-4 year-olds and was able to assist the one woman who was supervising/teaching them. Several students and I developed memorable personal relationships. However the orphanage is struggling with funding and a website to facilitate donations is in the works. Expect to hear when the website is completed!

Peace,
Joseph Kane
